TWELVE LADY JURORS.

The Experiment Not a Howling Success if This Story is True.

All the Fair Ones Sympathized With the Murderer, but the Jury Broke Up Without a Verdict.

"I was purser on one of the German Lloyd steamers about 10 years ago," says a writer in the Nashville Herald, "and we had been making a smooth journey all on one summer trip. It was just after the school commencement season and three-fourths of the passengers were ladies. There was a young fellow aboard from Georgia, I believe, who was traveling alone, and who appeared to have a very cool supply of cash when he first started out.

"He soon became the victim, however, of one of the most unprincipled scoundrels I ever saw, a desperate blackleg, who made his living crossing and recrossing the ocean and fleecing the passengers at cards.

"He was a Spanish-Mexican and a devilish handsome fellow. I saw him afterward in Seville, where he had a wife living—as pretty a woman as a man ever laid eyes on.

"Well, gentlemen and ladies, this young Georgian was fresh meat for the scoundrel. They were at their cards early and late. It was a pity to see him. The Spaniard knew he had him, and was playing him like a cat does a mouse.

"Little by little that young man's money was crossing the green, and the game was worked so nicely that he thought every loss would be his last. He was so sure that luck would change that he got wild about it. He was pale and sick from excitement.

"One day the Sevillian got reckless in his cuts and bungled, I guess, for all at once the young Southerner was at his throat and swearing he had cheated.

"I never saw such a desperate look as that Spaniard turned on us when several officers rushed up. He looked like an animal who had been wounded and whose first instinct was to strike back again. He was seared and self-assured at the same time. His face was red, his eyes were dancing from his assailant to the spectators and back again, and the very moment we were applying the frigid he had whipped out a stiletto from his sash and had buried it in the young fellow's breast.

"It was the work of a second, and the next he was struggling in the grasp of a dozen men, who had put a rope around his neck and were hurrying to the side of the ship.

"It was here the women came in. The murder occurred at an hour when the deck was thronged with passengers, and the situation was understood in a flash.

"There were screams and cries for pity and loud appeals for us to stay our hands. There were delicate white hands clinging to our coats, and before anything could be done the whole aspect of the affair had changed so that no gentleman on his honor could have followed out the plainest duty of the moment.

"From some motive of policy the captain took no active part in what followed. The fate of the murderer was turned over into the hands of the passengers, and our goal will to the blackleg was so generally questioned that the ladies insisted on taking a hand in the trial.

"A jury of 12 ladies—school teachers, school girls and professional excursionists—was empaneled with small regard to opinions previously formed or expressed.

"A lawyer from some Western State volunteered to defend the prisoner, and I have had very little respect for that man since, although his name is a household word to-day, and he has figured prominently in politics.

"There was considerable formality about the trial. The examination of witnesses was close, and the course pursued by the prosecution was vigorous and aggressive. The scoundrel's character was freely ventilated and shown to be of the blackest sort.

"The details of the crime and the devilish system of robbery which led up to it were fully emphasized.

"In the meantime that villain sat and wept. Tears stood in his handsome dark eyes, and his cheeks were pale with every token of remorse. His long, waving black hair was matted on his forehead, and he was the picture of wretched despair.

"He had already been exalted from the lyncher's rope to the seat of a murderer on trial, and damn me, strebegzing your pardon, ma'am, but he was in through with the argument that Westerner had made him an archangel.

"Every member of the whole blessed jury was crying. They would say, 'Poor, dear fellow!' and when the blamed lawyer stooped lower than I ever saw a gentleman stoop, and asked for pity and mercy upon the devil whose life had doubtless been under bad influences, and who would have been a Sunday-school superintendent if it hadn't been for misleading companionship, there was one grand burst of sympathy.

"Public sentiment, of which that jury was the center, became so strong in favor of the gambler that the young Georgian was made out to be a criminal for having crossed the path of this illstarred but well-meaning imp of satan, and tempted him to wrong.

"The forewoman of the jury took her lace handkerchief from her bosom and passed it down to him as he sat blubbering with the rest of them. A pretty, blue-eyed, yellow-haired girl was at the end of the row, and she rose from her seat on the jury and dampened the handkerchief before she offered it to him.

"The gentlemen passengers realized that the trial was absolutely farcical, and gave up trying to bring the murderer to the swift justice which those on board ship felt it their right to mete out.

"The jury was finally allowed to retire and an immediate verdict of not guilty was expected. They were very earnest about it, although the rest of us had got to thinking of it as a joke. We wanted to hear the result of their consultation. Twenty minutes elapsed away. Then it lengthened into an hour. The judge got down off his bench and the court was resolved into a group of curious passengers, who expressed to each other at intervals the deepest interest in the secret deliberations of the 12 women in the cabin below.

"Sunset and the bells for dinner, but still no jury. Finally they filed up the steps and gathered at the point where the judge met them. They were immediately surrounded by every passenger aboard, and ears were strained to catch every word that fell from the foreman's lips.

"'Have you agreed?' asked the judge.

"'No, sir,' she replied.

"'How is the jury divided?'

"'I don't know, your excellency.'

"'Is there any point of law you wish explained in order to aid your decision?'

"'No, sir; we understand the law.'

"'Why do you not come to a verdict? Would you prefer to postpone decision until to-morrow?'

"'No, sir,' said the forewoman, suddenly gaining firmness, 'I will have nothing more to do with the jury—not another instant. I would not again assume the responsible position I now hold, sir, for any consideration. That poor man has been maligned and abused by the members of this jury until my ears revolt at the sound of their voices. Everything went off smoothly enough at first until one lady, who was admiring the fine Spanish face of the accused, was interrupted by the most pitiable insinuation that he was a Mexican—'

"'Judge!' cried the blue-eyed girl, springing to her feet, 'I demand the right to speak. I meant no malice to the prisoner by saying he was a Mexican. I believe that one so good is next in Mexico as there ever was in Spain, and it is traitorous to our own country to speak otherwise.'

"Whoever heard of such rank bravery' asked a Boston excursionist, turning in her chair and appealing to the crowd. "Has Mexico ever produced a Ferdinand, a Phillip V., an Isabelle?'

"Then that whole jury opened up. Each woman on it was a volcano loaded to the neck for or against Mexico, and she took her crowd of listeners and barranged them vociferously. The passengers became involved in the debate, and pandemonium followed. Lady orators laced the judge and talked Prescott to him by the mile.

"The Mexican war was kept up for three days. The court never was convened and by now was sentence passed. The blackleg was kept under guard, but he was the lion of that ship. Every effort was put forth to make him enjoy himself, and so jealously did the ladies protect him that while we were landing there was a grand fist dispute about putting him in irons. The best touched the pier while the discussion was still high, and in the midst of it the prisoner escaped."

JONES' STATION.

The railroad has a good freight business and the Company has had to put on a larger engine.

Mr. M. L. Jones contemplates building a railroad house for general entertainment. Wiley M. Johnson, our blacksmith, will soon commence the erection of a large dwelling on his grounds.

Tom Chancellor, living about two miles north-east of here, of whom I spoke in a former letter as having his leg amputated, died on the morning of the 30th. His disease was blood poison and the amputation of his leg only prolonged his life a little while. He leaves a wife and three little children.

Mrs. Catharine Jackson, living here with her son-in-law, Richard Gentry, received a serious fall a short time since, which dislocated her hip and knee. Mrs. Jackson is now 91 years of age. She is a sister of George Spencer, a soldier of the Texan revolution of 1835-36, now living near Lyonia, Hancock county. Mr. Spencer relates many interesting events in that terrible struggle for independence. He is in his 77th year and at the point of death, with cancer of the mouth.

I send you with this letter my vote for Hon. Alexander Sneed as the lady and gentleman. FORBES.

The Parent of Insomnia

The parent of insomnia or wakefulness is in nine cases out of ten a dyspeptic stomach. Good digestion gives sound sleep, indigestion interferes with it. The basic and most common symptom of the prominent symptoms of a weak state of the gastric organs is a disturbance of the great nerve centre, the brain. Invigorate the stomach, and you restore equilibrium to the great centre. A most reliable medicine for the purpose is Hostetter's Stomach bitters, which is far preferable to mineral sedatives and powerful narcotics which, though they may for a time exert a soporific influence upon the brain, soon cease to act, and invariably injure the tone of the stomach. The latter, on the contrary, restore activity to the operations of that all important organ, and their beneficent influence is reflected in sound repose and a tranquil state of the nervous system. A wholesome impetus is likewise given to the action of the liver and bowels by its use.

Pleading for The Farmer Vote.

The Paducah News, telling a story of a legislative contest between a lawyer and a farmer, in which each sought the agricultural vote, makes the lawyer say this in one of his speeches:

"Gentlemen, you all know me. I was born and raised on a farm. I have resided in this county all my life. I have mauled rails and rolled logs with you. I have hunted 'coons and 'possums with you night after night. I can show you to this day the scars on my hand where I ran my arm in a hole to catch a coon by the tail.

"I have been the women came in. The murder occurred at an hour when the deck was thronged with passengers, and the situation was understood in a flash.

Our Sentiments Also.

[Frankfort Capital.]

It is quite probable that the new Constitution has been adopted by a good majority. We have expected the result for weeks, and are, therefore, not surprised nor do we propose to be cast down. We can stand it if other folks can, and when they tire of it, as they will, we shall not put upon them the mortification of hearing, "We told you so." Some, of course, will be prefer ex-pediency to principle, will marvel that we should have continued opposition after we had no longer a hope that the instrument would be defeated. It would be useless to argue with such as these. In other days, in darker and more dangerous days, we clung to the flag of a losing cause, risking limb and life in its defense, when every sign told that defeat awaited it. It is one of our prondest memories that we never deserted it, but were one of those who were the very last to lay down their arms on this side of the Mississippi river. So with our fight against the new Constitution. We sincerely opposed its adoption, because it seemed best for all the people that it should be defeated. With this belief, only a coward would have laid down his arms until the fight was lost or won. We have no apologies to offer and have no regrets to express, unless it be that we are sorry not to have fought harder and more effectively. We have need no harsh terms that were not justified: have impugned no honest man's motives, and are ready with clean hands, an honest heart and an earnest purpose to go into any contest for the good of the people that may arise under the new Constitution, and to fight for them as earnestly as we have tried to do in the contest just closed.

And now, putting behind us the unpleasant duties of the past four months, brothers of the Democratic press, we are looking towards you, and here's success to you and yours, and to our National ticket in 1892.

A Letter in Transit 28 Years.

Mr. George Adkins, of Dallas, Texas, received a letter the other day which has been in transit twenty-eight years. It had been a very long time on the road, but it got there just the same. Mr. Adkins gives a version of the delay:

"I belonged to the Fourth Cavalry of Kentucky, Gen. H. L. Giltner's brigade, and we were stationed in Southwest Virginia. This was in April, 1863. At that time Burbridge was raiding the country and we were looking out for him. We became somewhat scattered and I had to mail west to the Adjutant General's office, from which department it was sent to our command. Some time ago Gen. Giltner wrote to me, saying he had been called on for a history of some action, and looking over the old documents, which he had saved from the wreck, found the mail which had been lost, and in the package was the letter to me. He apologized to me for the delay, stating that the Confederate postal service at that stage of the war was an uncertain thing. He inclosed the letter."

"Well, you can imagine my astonishment when I got that letter. Pleased to receive it, I proceeded to glance back through those long years, and thought of the eventful changes which time had wrought. I remembered the young girl friend I left behind me, and

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19.

BILL BUTTON, who killed revenue officer Frank Weir in Barren county some months ago, is dying in jail.

HARDINSBURGH is rejoicing over a flow of natural gas, which was struck at a depth of fifteen hundred feet.

JOHN YOUNG BROWN'S plurality for Governor will exceed 27,000. Kentucky is still slightly inclined to be Democratic.

SOMEBODY ought to go up and tell the Lebanon Enterprise the war is over. It is still fighting for the new Constitution.

MRS. JAMES K. POLK, relict of President Polk, died at Nashville, Tenn., last week, and was buried beside her distinguished husband.

THE Farmers Alliance of Tennessee has refused to endorse the Third party move, and will work for tariff reduction and reform within the ranks of the Democratic party.

THE Hardin Independent publishes a fine list of portraits of its Fair officers and devotes a page to the write-up of the coming Fair at Elizabethtown, which it says will be the finest ever held there.

SOUTH CARROLLTON is paving her sidewalks with stone. Would it not be cheaper in the long run for Hartford to use stone or brick for the purpose, rather than plank, which is continually getting out of repair?

THE county was visited Monday by the best all-around rain that has fallen here in several months. Crop prospects are fine, and with anything like fair prices for their produce, our farmers ought to be prosperous this year.

CENTRAL CITY has a town ordinance against selling liquor. Del Vick sold in violation of it and was fined $90 in one case and $60 in another. Such heroic doses will likely kill Mr. Vick's taste for the liquor business.

HARTFORD likes Louisville very much. Her commercial relations with that city have been most pleasant, but with a boat running Rough creek, with cheap rates to Evansville, Louisville must hustle if she sells us her merchandise.

THE Louisville Annual Conference of the Methodist Church, South, will convene at Cadiz, Trigg county, September 16th. Although ten miles from a railroad, the citizens of Cadiz expect a large attendance and every arrangement will be made to entertain them.

WE acknowledge receipt of an invitation to be present at the Hardin county Fair, which convenes at Elizabethtown, September 8th to 11th, inclusive. Mr. F. M. Joplin is President of the Company and W. H. Gardner, Secretary, and they promise the people a splendid exhibition.

THE health of Hartford was never better than it has been this summer. No serious sickness has come to afflict us. In fact, when folks in Hartford have much sickness, it is after many neighboring cities have had epidemics. Hartford is the most healthful locality in the Green River country. Move your family in this winter and enjoy life in the best town in Western Kentucky.

MANY who are in position to know, believe that President Harrison, whose administration has been so unpopular, will not be a candidate for re-election. All indications now seem to point to Blaine's nomination by his party and a repetition of the old fight between him and Cleveland, which, if it comes, will be attended by the same result as before, except that Cleveland will win by a largely increased majority.

SOME weeks ago the HERALD mentioned the numerous incendiary fires that were occurring in and near Leitchfield. Since then, things have gotten no better, and although watchmen patrol the town at night, a number of mysterious fires have occurred. Last week two hay stacks belonging to Frank Larkin were burned and Bassill Bratcher is now in jail charged with the crime. If the guilt of some recent fires there, could be fixed upon him, he would no doubt fare badly.

OUR farmer friends, did you ever stop to think that a scrub eats just as much and is quite as much trouble as a thoroughbred? Their similarity ceases, however, when selling time is comes. The HERALD would be glad to have some items like the following to record concerning Ohio county. The Elizabethtown News says:

"One hundred and twenty-three head of short-horn cattle were disposed of at Public Sale, Thos Grigsby's sale near Springfield, at prices ranging from $60 to $150. The sales included his famous premium herd."

OUR neighboring county of Hardin seems to be a kind of incubator for hatching out Governors. The News says:

"Among the prominent candidates for Governor in Missouri this year is Dr. W. Pope Yeaman, a native of Hardin county, who has made a fortune and a name in his western home. His candidacy recalls the fact that this county has probably produced more Governors than any other in Kentucky. There is J. W. Yeamans, the first Governor of Nebraska, of whom mention was made last week, the distinguished and well-remembered ex-Governor of Texas, Hon John Ireland, Gov. John L. Helm, Gov. John Young Brown, and now probably Gov. W. Pope Yeaman."

SPEAKING of a recent celebration at Paducah, attended by 5,000 negroes, the Standard says:

"It is a noticeable fact that no better behaved crowd of people ever came to Paducah or a visit than that here yesterday to celebrate emancipation anniversary. They were not only well behaved, but were well dressed and looked to be prospering."

People of all classes are glad to note this improvement in the negro of the South, and all join in hoping that as his school facilities are kept up and he gets further and further from ignorance and its accompanying prejudice, he may continue to be a useful and well-behaved citizen of the State.

CAPTAIN JACK GROSS is one of the most popular gentlemen in this Congressional District, and has been prominently mentioned for Adjutant General to succeed Gen. Hill under Governor Brown, but he is not an applicant for the place. To a Times reporter, when asked about the matter, he said:

"All I have ever heard about that, has come to me through mere public gossip. I have no knowledge that Mr. Brown has ever considered my name in that connection, and so little attention have I paid to these rumors that I have never considered whether or not I desire the place. Farmer Gross manages to get a good deal of real enjoyment out of life in a quiet, wholesome way. Adjutant General Gross might find that a handsome uniform covers a multitude of worries. Then, my home in Butts Bottom just suits me. I do not wish to change it even for a residence in the State Capital."

THOUGHTS FOR THE IDLERS.

Below we give an extract from a beautiful sermon by Rev. J. B. Whitford, formerly a member of our General Conference, but now of Oxford, Michigan. The sermon is replete throughout with sense and beauty, but this extract ought to touch the conscience of many a one who "isolates himself from church work and church life," as well as many a one who fails to do his part in other walks of life, but is all too ready to complain of the results. In a sermon upon "The New Era," the eloquent divine said:

"While mental growth is not so swift as we all desire, yet, the fact itself cannot be questioned. All of us would welcome the appearance of some giant that could take our world and carry it up the divine highway. But such immense strides do not belong to the human family. Men with their present disorders, narrowness of soul-vision, feebleness of heart-power, poverty of thought and aspiration, shallowness of affection and worldliness of ambition cannot climb the lights until they drop their leaden weights. Members long to see their respective churches grow and advance in the higher life, for advancement along this line means prosperity. But many seem to be unmindful of the fact that they themselves must become actors in this drama of growth. It is the wonder of many why our churches do not march to the music and with a buoyancy and romance worthy of immortal youth. But were they a little more wise and thoughtful they would first ascertain if they themselves were making any music or introducing discordant notes to mar the harmony of the performance. The rose with half of its petals torn away would not dare to say, 'O Lord, make this garden more beautiful!' Such a prayer would be inconsistent, for a ragged, yet perfect rose will mar the unity and harmony of any garden. But its prayer should be, 'O Lord, make me beautiful, bring back my lost petals; then with my symmetry and glory restored, I will enrich this garden and send my incense to thy throne.'

"We often ornate and discordant say in prayer, 'O Lord, revive this church, make it harmonious.' But were they to say, 'O Lord, make me a unit, harmonize my being, key my will to the Divine will, make my heart a hive of sweetness,' the prayer would be consistent. The church is made up of separate individuals; each must be a unit, or it will be a thing of beauty.

Science tells us everything is related in the universe. There is a bond of sympathy between fluttering leaves and far-off constellations. But a richer, sweeter bond of sympathy should exist between each member of the Christian church. If we so isolate ourselves from church work and church life, we destroy its harmony, and mar the unity of the threads in its web of light. When the unrefining leaven that comes of interdependence and profit by it, they will cease to wonder why the churches are not shining with a richer light and making clearer the new age of justice."

PAPERS AND NEWSPAPERS.

The Farmer's and Laborer's Journal, an alleged newspaper published at Owensboro, which claims to be the only "farmers" paper in the country, gave one page last week to reprint some "Lecture" delivered by some reformer who wants to run the Government, and the balance of its space in Alliance politics, making only a short news note of the fatal disease that is killing so many of the farmers' cattle. The HERALD not only published the fact of the disease, but also gave a remedy. The farmers of this country may sometimes for a while be gulled into forsaking the well-established and reliable newspapers of the country that call themselves the "farmers'" papers, but it does not take them long to see their mistake. The pity is that such cattle fatten even for a little while upon the gullibility of misguided farmers. But it is true of the farmer that if, like other folks, he becomes erratic sometimes, he generally veers round all right soon, and he knows where he gets the worth of his money. Hence he usually takes his well established newspaper like the HERALD and reads it and profits by it.

WHERE IS THE WRONG?

Mr. John J. Ingalls, who for years led the Republican party in the United States Senate, made a speech at Lexington last week in which he said:

"One of the perils which threaten modern society arises from the unjust distribution of wealth. Misery in the voice crying in the wilderness, as was told but in New York here are twenty men and firms and corporations who own and control half of that great metropolis. There are 5,000,000 in this country that never lose the sensation of hunger from one year's end to the other. This can not be explained on any one theory of political economy. One-half of the accumulated earnings and capital of this country have fallen into the hands of less than 3,000 people, while fourteen are by some process of juggling, book-keeping or incantation, practically under the control of the one-two-thousandth part of the population. I admit that this justifies the wildest denunciation of those men whom we properly characterize as the enemies of society. Yet thoughtful people consider this one of the most stupendous problems of modern society."

The "jugglery, book-keeping or incantation" can be explained when we remember that the Government under Republican rule has year after year laid tribute upon the $2,500,000,000 of whom we of the South and West are part, to enrich the 31,000. But the day of this injustice is almost passed. When men like Ingalls begin to tell the truth about these things, the time is at hand when the people, the 62,500,000, are ready to learn the conditions that have made this thing possible and demand justice and equality before the law. Mr. Ingalls is a fallen leader of a once proud party that has lived into an age with which it has so sympathy and whose shadow is now stretching far toward the East.

THE CAUSE OF IT.

The Central City Republican, although a little off on political matters, still says a good thing once in a while. Some of these things which our contemporary is seeking to emphasize, are particularly pertinent just now, when so many farmers in Ohio county are buying the necessities they ought to raise and are not even able to pay $1.50 a year for their county paper. How is it with you, my brother? The Republican says:

"If there be any oppression, the people are to blame themselves—not through politics, not through our financial system, but directly through their own mode of business. How many farmers raise enough corn, wheat, meat, pork and other farm products to supply their own use? We have too many farmers who have to buy bacon, flour, meal and other farm products which they should raise at home. They put out large crops of tobacco and expect to buy all the necessaries of life and comfort with their tobacco crop, and hate, by an over-production of this one staple, crowded the market with a mean grade of that, and the consequence is the price for the quality they produce has become very small. In addition to this, they run an account with the merchant for the year for such things as they should have at home, thereby keeping up the credit system, which is a continual drawback to both the farmer and the merchant. How many of our farmers have an over-production of farm products! In nearly all parts of this county there are for sale—and we can buy bacon, flour and meal, where there is one who has these products for sale. This oppression we hear of every day is in reality among ourselves, and not, as we often hear, a fault of our financial system. If our farmers would turn their attention to the raising of more farm products, to the improvement of their farms, and do away with this intolerable credit system, this cry of oppression would be stopped. Stop your chronic kicking and see if you are really as industrious as your prosperous neighbor, who has by his continuous efforts, both in the way of industry and management, accumulated enough of this world's goods to be able to pay cash for what he buys, and thereby gets the per cent. off which you have to pay when you buy or a credit. The prosperous farmer never buys that which he can raise at home. He always has a surplus to exchange for necessities which he cannot produce on the farm. You can do the same if you try."

How a Girl Makes Money.

"I give my experience for the benefit of others. I sent $6.00 to the Queen Toilet Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, and received 3 agents outfits' and my own county for territory. I started two of my friends to work and also canvassed myself for one month; my friends nor myself never canvassed before, but we found it no trouble to take orders, even close to drug stores, for people could not help buying when they saw with their own eyes what these remedies can do. I now have nine sub-agents in the towns and a branch office at my home, which the company mentions in their advertisement in our county paper."

"My clear profit last month was $105. One county alone me all the business I can attend to.

WANTS HIS WIFE.

A Youthful Husband Seeks to Recover His Bride---She Was Torn From Him by Her Father, Who Thrashed the Husband.

HAWESVILLE, KY., Aug. 15.—The little town of Lewisport, ten miles from Hawesville, in this county, is fairly "thrilled" over with excitement, brought about by a youthful couple who eloped to Indiana yesterday and married Thursday evening. Cromwell McDaniel, a young man about twenty years of age, and a son of Rev. J. S. McDaniel, a Methodist divine of Lewisport, and Miss Myrtle Adams, aged eighteen, a beautiful and popular girl, daughter of Capt. R. C. Adams, of the same place, were in a buggy on Ayer's landing three miles below here, to cross the river, in order that they could proceed to Carnellton, Ind., and be married.

On arriving at that place a serious obstacle confronted the young couple, for the clerk would not issue the necessary marriage license without some distinguished party to sanction the union of the young lady's age.

Driving to Rockport, Ind., the necessary license was, in some manner, procured very late in the night, and they were married.

In the meantime the young lady's father and her cousin, D. B. Greathouse, were scouring the country around and sending telegrams everywhere to have the wedding stopped, but too late. The father-in-law-to-be then came to Hawesville, and then went to Carnellton, where they succeeded in finding the bird to Rockport. They then went to the Kentucky landing, opposite Rockport, and found the newly married couple yesterday evening returning home, wrapped in happiness, but this happiness was of short duration.

Once in the presence of the young man who had stolen his daughter, Capt. Adams fairly mopped the earth up with his new sou-in-law. He held him up, spanked him, and whipped him in every way imaginable, to the great discomfort and serious damage of the new groom. He then took his daughter away from young McDaniel, driving the latter off, and McDaniel was compelled to seek refuge at a neighbor's, and later the father drove for Lewisport, where he has her in close confinement. Young McDaniel returned to town late yesterday evening, and this morning sued out a writ of habeas corpus, to recover the possession of his wife. A telegram was this morning sent to County Judge Taber and County Attorney Kelly to come to Lewisport this evening to try the case, but, owing to the absence of Judge Taber, they did not go.

What the result will be, is hard to conjecture, though it is the general opinion that the boy will recover his wife.

The above rather sensational account is clipped from the Courier-Journal of Sunday, and is of interest to many of the HERALD's readers to many of whom the McDaniel family is well known. Relatives of the young man living here have advices from the seat of war that say the young man was not assaulted by the irate father at all, but the latter used his pistol to intimidate him and acting upon the better part of valor, he left his wife with her father, but they have now come to terms and there are promises of a general reconciliation.

The September Session.

(Commonwealth.)

"I noticed that Mr. Bronston has been interviewed on the probability of changes to be made in the new Constitution, at its session next month," said delegate Macoy this morning.

"While I might be of the opinion that changes ought to be made," he continued, "I take it that the overwhelming majority in favor of the new instrument is notice to the Convention that the Constitution suits the people, and that they do not desire any changes. For instance, the provisions of the Constitution are that no one shall be eligible to be Circuit Judge who is over thirty-five years of age.

"That is clearly a mistake, and it occurred in this way: The provision originally was, not less than thirty-five years of age nor more than sixty-five, and the latter portion was stricken out, but in doing so the word "and" was inadvertently retained. The intention of the Convention was that Circuit Judges should be not less than thirty-five years of age.

"There are, also, in the schedule, certain provisions which belong elsewhere, and the September session should arrange them in their appropriate places. The object of the schedule is to give effect to the Constitution and is properly no part of it.

"Changes of the nature indicated, I believe, would be altogether proper, but I don't think any change should be made in any material provision, and I would oppose any such movement."

The new Constitution will be in effect when, after the session of the Convention in September, the delegates sign it, and the president of the Convention in open session proclaims it to be the Constitution of Kentucky.

MAGAN MATTERS.

August 15, 1891.—The quietude of our little town has been broken repeatedly and especially Sundays by men and boys quarreling and fighting, who are inoxicated on blackberry wine, made and sold by men from Indiana, who seem to have but little respect for themselves or any body else but they will by the help of civil authority be made to regard the laws of our county. They say if they are molested they will go back to Indiana. God speed their departure is the wish of the better class.

The school at Magan, and also two adjoining districts, are in progress and bid fair to be successful.

Mr. T. P. Ralph contemplates removing to Jackson Purchase. While we regret to give Tom up, our loss will be others gain.

Mr. Sam Baird's team of mules became frightened at a hole in one of the bridges on the levee, on South Panther Creek near Ralph's store, and attempting to turn them back, ran the wagon off the side of the butment and turned it bottom upwards, throwing the driver. Mrs. Baird and two children out, one being caught under the bed but not seriously hurt. It would be well enough for our Commissioner to see after the bridges on this levee.

Miss Mandie Westerfield, of Pleasant Ridge, has been visiting relatives in this community for two weeks.

Mr. Deanie Graves, Pleasant ridge, has been through our neighborhood hunting stock cows. He says sheep are on the decline, and consequently dog not buy any.

COUNTRY SPY.

For the Teachers.

In their noble battle against ignorance the HERALD stands side by side with the teachers of the county. The HERALD visits many homes where few influences better than the county newspaper and the common school ever come, and it will be found doing what it can to make the school work interesting and profitable, and it wants the co-operation of every teacher in the county. It desires to know them and to know something of the characters they have built up in their respective communities. With this end in view, we have been led to offer the premiums which we will give on the last day of the Ohio County Fair to the two most popular teachers in the county.

The ballots we print below are coming in from many quarters and many a good name is found on them. The lady who gets the most votes among the lady contestants and the gentleman who leads the list on his side will receive at the hands of the HERALD a present, which will through her and his life be a happy reminder of the esteem in which she or he is held. Anyone may vote by clipping the ballots and inserting the names of his favorites and signing his name to his ballots and sending them to the "Counting Editor HERALD." The only prerequisite required, is that the teacher's name who receives the vote be found on our subscription list. It costs nothing to vote, and we want a free, fair contest, so send in the names of your favorites, and let them be added to the list to be published soon.

Look Out For An Invitation.

[Shelby News.]

Keep your eye on the newspaper, and see which of the merchants want your custom and are sufficiently courteous to invite you to call. There is much more in advertising than you may think. It is not only to tell of his goods that a man advertises, but it is to invite the people who read—the thinking, the intelligent—to pay him a visit, and judge for themselves as to the quality and price of what he offers for sale. Then read the advertisements. Don't make any mistake about that. They are just as much interested in knowing where to buy to an advantage as the advertiser is in selling his goods.

Obituary

DIED.—At his home near Falls of Rough, Grayson county, Ky., August 5, 1891, of urinary troubles, in the 91st year of his age, Capt. Henry Godsey.

Mr. Godsey was born Aug. 22, 1800, in Rockingham county, N. C. He was married to Miss Patsy Shreve, of Rockingham county, N. C., in 1825, whom he survived for nearly seventy years. Two children were born to them, one of whom still survives, and who is the widow of the late Henry Comes, of Rockingham county, N. C. He was married the second time to Miss Ruth Comes, a sister of the same county, in 1867. Eight children were born to them, four of whom still survive. They are, John M., Thomas, Robert, and Mrs. Jane Eskridge, all of Grayson county, Ky. He professed faith in Christ in 1831, where he has since lived. He was a member of the Pleasant Grove Baptist church at the time of his death. Uncle Henry was a good citizen, who was truthful in all his respects and well spoken well.

He enjoyed a useful life, and lived to a ripe old age. How many of us will live to be four score years and ten? His remains were laid to rest in the burying ground on his own home farm, after prayer by Rev. Chandler, pastor of the Falls of Rough Methodist church, in the presence of many sorrowing friends.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness caused by catarrh that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. M. Joplin, Elizabethtown, Ky., dealer in Lumber, Doors, Sash, Blinds, and Building Material; also Engines, Saw Mills and all kinds of heavy Farm Machinery. Specially low prices for fall trade. Write for prices. 33 1m

Mr. F. M. Joplin, of Elizabethtown, passed through Hartford last week, en route for Rocky Mount, Franklin county, Va., where he will be married on the 20th inst. to Miss Josie Saunders, an attractive and accomplished Virginia lady. Mr. Joplin is one of the most popular men in Hardin county and a wail known to our citizens, his former wife having been a daughter of Uncle Warren Griffin. The HERALD extends congratulations.

A family fight in which Sanford, Norvil and George Logen took part, occurred at Horton, Friday. The parties are all employed at the stave works there, and had not been on good terms for some time. The fend culminated in a general knockdown in which heavy staves and an axe played a part. George and Norvil were each seriously bruised about the head and Sanford was cut in the shoulder with an axe, receiving a wound which may prove fatal. All parties were colored.

Mr. John C. Riley has completed his splendid farm house one mile North of town on the old Peyton farm, and moved into it last week. His house is perhaps the best farm house in the county, and surrounded as it is by several hundred fertile acres, it ought to be an object of great satisfaction to its "hustling" owner.

Kiah James and W. D. McIntire, two man employed in the mines at Hamilton, had a desperate fight in the darkness of the mine Saturday. They quarreled about the "turn" upon which McIntyre was to hand James' cars out, and James assailed him, cutting him severely several times with a knife. The wounds are severe, but not considered dangerous.

John B. McDaniel, who has been doing business for some years at Olaton, Ky., made a general assignment last Thursday for the benefit of his creditors. His business has been extensive and the general depression of trade along with slow collections, forced him to the wall. F. L. Felix was made assignee, and a general inventory of the business is being made. His assets and liabilities will be something near equal, reaching about $8,000 or $9,000.

Mr. Brodie Howard, a well-known citizen of Daviess county, has rented the brick hotel known as the Hartford House, and will take possession as soon as the proprietor, Mr. Jas. W. Ford, completes the extensive improvements which have been under way for some months, which will be about the first of September. Mr. Howard is an enterprising and well-to-do gentleman, and we shall be glad to see this splendid hotel under his competent management.

Some weeks ago D. Alford was fined and sent to jail for 100 days for selling liquor in violation of the prohibition law. He had leaved so well that the jailer made a "trusty" of him, permitting him to go to the court house and other points about town without a guard. This he did for some days, always coming up all right at closing hours, but Friday afternoon Jailer Thomson missed him, and when search was made, it was found he had been gone some hours. The pursuit of the culprit was engaged in by several officers, but he has not been apprehended, and will likely not be. If his escape results in his leaving the county, it will perhaps be a good thing.

FIRE!

GALLANT WORK BY THE BUCKET BRIGADE.

The most threatening if not the most destructive fire Hartford has had for years, occurred at 4:30 Monday morning. Before any but the earliest risers had arisen for the week's work, the fire alarm sounded and in a few minutes the streets were lined with the fire ladies, each with his bucket, scurrying to the scene of danger.

The building was a one-story frame store immediately adjoining two similar structures, the one on its North side occupied by Mr. Fred Worner as a shoe store and Harry Taylor's law office on the South. When reached, the inside of the building was enveloped in flames, and it was almost too hot to permit the men to enter, but it becoming known that there were three kegs of powder in the building a determined dash was made for that, and when the boys came back through the blinding smoke and stifling heat, it was with the powder in their arms. It was found impossible to save any considerable part of the stock, and the determined fight began to arrest the flames and prevent their spread to the balance of the block, which is nearly solid and made up almost entirely of frame buildings. The HERALD building, which is fire-proof, and Griffin's drug store, being the only brick structures on the square. Buckets were plentiful, and although the fate of the block seemed certain, every man seemed to know his duty, and for fifty minutes the fiercest fight ever seen in Hartford, excepting only the saving of Fields' stable when Sam Williams' house burned, went on.

A number of times Worner's house was in a blaze and the fight seemed hopeless, as the space between the walls was less than four feet, but a hundred buckets, many of them large cedar tubs, and bushels barrels of water where it would do the most good, and although many thinking the fight hopeless, had carried out the entire stock of shoes, it was finally seen that the fire boys were gaining ground and before the walls of the burning building fell in the fire was under control. The wall next to Taylor's law office was never burned through and the one next to Worner's was left standing, although burned through in many places.

THE LOSSES.

Carson and Morton had a stock of about a thousand dollars which was almost a total loss. Some bacon and heavy groceries, perhaps to the amount of $200, were saved. There was a can of coal oil in the cellar which it was impossible to reach but which the flames did not get to.

The house belonged to Miss Hennie Gunther, and was valued at $300 and is almost a total loss. There was no insurance on the groceries or the house, the policy on the latter having been cancelled about two weeks ago because some parties had placed some bailed hay in an adjoining building.

Worner's loss on stock by moving will reach near $100 covered by insurance, and his house is also badly damaged.

Mr. Harry Taylor's extensive law library was moved into the street and many of his books damaged, though his house was not materially injured.

SPARKS.

Miss Gunther will rebuild her house at once.

But for our splendid water supply the town would have been burned.

It had rained a little in the night and the dampness helped to keep the fire from spreading.

Nothing is known of the origin of the fire. It is thought by some to have resulted from the striking of a match by a rat. It originated in the rear of the building and when first seen was well under way.

Henry Carson and Tom Morton are full of pluck and while badly crippled by this disaster, they are not downed, but will "come again." Their store has long been a popular one and the town will see to it that the boys soon get on their feet again.

The large frame Commercial Hotel and Charlie Field's livery stable are the buildings that would have gone along with the Red Front building and G. J. Bean's large two story residence and business house, P. Ross's two-story business house, and Leonard Bean's large store and residence, if the fire had been permitted to spread; but the boys said it mustn't.

Jack White says that when engine No. 2 comes to the fire, the fire goes out. Engine No. 1 is the bachelors and others who sleep along Market street. No. 2 includes Jake Colemon, Ellis Thomas and Mrs. Vaught's boarders. No. 3 takes C. M. Barnett, E. D. Guffy and residents of their neighborhood, while the colored boys, who never worked nobler, bring up No. 4.

Many of the ladies worked hard to save the town, some of them at the pumps and many with buckets. One young lady whose hands are soft and who looks ranked to "tough" things, stood for a long time at her post at the pump north of the public square and told the boys to fight the fire while she handled the pump. It's hard to burn a town with folks in it like that.

Accidentally Shot.

At 3 o'clock Sunday, August 9th, while some little boys were playing with the remains of an old pistol in the dark hollow, near Jones' Station, it was accidentally discharged, the charge, sevan shot, taking effect in the left side of the head and above the ear of the twelve-year-old son of John Allen, a timber men living at Jones' Station. A surgeon was summoned but he failed to remove the shot. On the morning of the 10th, another surgeon was sent for, but his report has not reached me at this writing. I visited the little fellow at 7.30 a. m. the 10th, and though he appeared to be resting easy, he is dangerously wounded. His father gave me the miserable remainder of the weapon which is of the pattern of fifty years ago and looks like it had been thrown away many years ago. It is in a wretched condition to do the mischief it has done.

FORBES.

LATZE.—At 11 o'clock this morning, the 10th, I visited little Willie Allen and found him improving and in a favorable condition to recover. The shot is yet in his head and the wounds are healing over.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS.

For the Early Navigation of Rough River.

Col. W. H. Moore, who has contributed more than any other man toward the opening of Rough River to navigation, is in receipt of a letter from the S. Engineer in charge of the work clearing out the river bed. The letter is written from the U. S. Engineer's office, Bowling Green, under date August 12th and is as follows:

BOWLING GREEN, KY., Aug. 12, 1891.

DEAR SIR.—We will start another party in over the line. I wish you would notify me that the log boom are ready. Yours truly,

WM. S. APPERY,
Lieut. Corps of Engineers.

This means that pursuant to the suggestion contained in the HERALD some weeks ago, the Government will proceed at once to clean out the bed of the river and remove the obstructing shoals, thereby insuring an navigation a four-sized boat to Evansville a good part of the year.

Col. Moore has been in correspondence with Capt. Buley, commander of the boat now plying between Bowling Green and Evansville, and he went to make arrangements at once to put a boat in Rough river as soon as the order is cleared up.

Some effort is being made to organize a company for that purpose in Hartford, but it is thought most people that the matter will be referred to Capt. Buley, who is an experienced and successful river man.

With good navigation facilities extending to Evansville, Hartford can better await the certain, if delayed, coming of her railroad.

Sterrette.

Col. W. Stone Sterrette, Hawesville, entertained a select audience at the court house last Friday night with his lecture, giving his varied experience as an editor and wrecker of Kentucky newspapers.

The tale of his troubles was well told and much of it was highly amusing, containing many good hits upon the modern newspaper. The Colonel's experience as a lover seems to have been no more satisfactory than it is as an editor, and his views about girls were no less interesting.

Death of Henry W. Martin at Beaver Dam.

Henry W. Martin, son of Harrison Martin, deceased, and Mrs. Corrilla Martin, was found dead by the roadside near Taylor Mines, Saturday last about 1 o'clock p. m. He was living with his mother and had engaged in farming during the summer, but had begun mining coal for the fall, and was at work at Taylor Mines that day. Feeling unwell a short time before his death, he left his work and started home, but was found dead a short time afterwards by some boys who were passing. Squire R. T. Reader was summoned, and a inquest held. After the testimony and examinations of Drs. Smith and Mitchell, the jury found a verdict of death caused by heart failure. Henry was a hearty, well-looking young man of about twenty-four years of age, and highly esteemed as a sober, industrious young man. His burial was largely attended on Sunday evening at the Paxton cemetery. His death casts a gloom over the community and the family have the sympathy of all.

BUGAL.

Teachers

Attending the Institute can find good board at Mrs. H. A. Miller's, near the water mill, at 50c per day.

Three of 'Em.

Born, to the wife of Hamilton Waddle, Esq., living two miles East of Hartford, on Wednesday of last week, two boys and a girl.

You see it will take lots o' people to consume the great crop Ohio county will raise this year.

Notice.

Dr. J. P. Williams, of the office of Dr. W. B. Arnsall, will be in Hartford September 1st, 1891, and will remain five days. He would be pleased to have all desiring first-class dental work, call on him at the Commercial Hotel. 3342

Where Shall I Attend School?

Before answering this question, get information concerning West Kentucky C. & T. College, South Carrollton, Ky.,—a school noted for its thoroughness and economy. Seven experienced instructors are employed in the interest of its pupils. Board, including furnished room, fuel, lights, etc., everything but washing, is but $2.00 per week. The "Ladies Boarding Hall," under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Feitz, and presided over by Prof. Carlyle, affords a pleasant home and home for young ladies. Compare the advantages and rates of this College with the best and the cheapest. For Catalogue, etc., Address G. B. LIKENS, Secretary. 3291

The special attention of our readers—especially our lady readers—is called to the unique (double head) advertisement of the Queen Toilet Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, to be found in this issue of our paper. The company is one of the most liberal and reliable in America of its kind and their preparations the most effective.

Important Notice.

I am requested or rather urged by Miss M. F. Huber, Secretary of the Kentucky Sunday School Union, to send her the name of every Sunday School in the county, with the number of officers, teachers and scholars, and whether over or under or summer. I trust every Superintendent in the county will send me immediately the desired information.

THE TEACHERS.

Programme of the Institute to be Held Next Week.

We give below programme of the Ohio County Teachers' Institute, to be held in Hartford, August 24th to 29th, inclusive. The programme is well arranged and promises of a good time for the teachers if they will only come to add each his part to the interest of the work.

Remember to there one should attend the Institute, Supt. Jo. B. Rogers has been corresponding with State Superintendent Pickett, and authorizes the publication of the following, which will be of interest to the teachers. Prof. Pickett's letter is dated Frankfort, August 13, and is as follows:

DEAR SIR.—In reply to your letter of inquiry, I refer to the Common School Law, Art. X, sec. 1.

A teacher must attend the Teachers' Institute in the county in which he expects to teach, unless prevented by actual sickness or other disability, of which you must be the judge. Of course those teachers who do not intend to teach during the present school year, are not required to attend the institute for the present year.

It would give me pleasure to attend your institute, but official duties will detain me here until the close of my term of office, Sept. 7, 1891.

With best wishes, Yours truly,

JOSEPH DESHA PICKETT,
Superintendent Public Instruction.

Daviess Criminal Court.

"Yesterday the criminal term of Daviess Circuit Court adjourned, after Judge Little had passed sentence upon the following prisoners: Wm. Keaton, grand larceny, one year; Sam Thompson, forgery, two years; Jim Fields, arson, one year; Jonas Stoffy, detaining a female to have carnal knowledge of her, seven years; James Green, grand larceny, one year; L. P. Whittaker, manslaughter, four years.

"Henry Cook, who was convicted of manslaughter and given twenty-one years, remains in the county jail, pending the result of his appeal to the Court of Appeals."

The man, L. P. Whittaker, who gets four years in the pen, is well known here, having been in every criminal term of our court for some years. He lived about Whitesville, and was a very tough youth. His sentence was quite as short as he deserved.

SPECIAL SALE!

"Sara and Me"

During the Spring and Summer have sold STACKS and PILES of Goods, and have had lots of fun besides. Our Mr. Anderson, who is one of the shrewdest buyers in the United States, bought our Goods for us, and it was just fun for us to dish them out to our customers, because they all seemed to appreciate the Bargains we were able to offer them, and this of course pleased us, too. But notwithstanding all this, knowing that the FALL season will soon be upon us, we want to do

SOMETHING EXTRA

For our customers before we get in our New Stock, so this morning we put on sale out of the immense stock of RIBBONS we carry, sale to continue till September 1st:

A No. 16 all-silk satin-edge Ribbon (worth 25c) at	20c
A No. 12 all-silk satin-edge Ribbon (worth 20c) at	15c
A No. 12 Picot-edge Ribbon (worth 18c) at	12½c
A No. 9 all-silk satin-edge Ribbon (worth 15c) at	10c
A No. 7 all-silk satin-edge Ribbon (worth 10c) at	8c
A No. 4 Picot edge Ribbon (worth 5c) at	3½c

These were rare Bargains, quality considered, at the old price, but this cut of from 25 to 33⅓ per cent, makes them Bargains unobtainable only at ANDERSON'S BAZAAR. You can make money by laying in your supply of Ribbons NOW. We would ask your attention to a few more prices on Goods at the BAZAAR that are hard to duplicate, viz:

A splendid Cotton Jeans at	12½c
A pure flax Towel Crash at	5c
A pure flax Table Linen at	25c
A genuine Bedticking, warranted to hold feathers, at	10c
A genuine yard-wide Brown Cotton at	5c
A good Bleached Cotton at	5c

Our sales of "Wear-Forever" Shoes and "Anderson's Wonderful $1.99 Kid Shoes" have exceeded our expectation, but we have increased our stock and can now furnish those who have heretofore been forced to wait.

IN MILLINERY, Sara still manages to suit her customers, so if you need a Late Summer Hat, call on "Sara and Me." ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF THE WILLIAMS COAL COMPANY.

¶ 1. These articles of incorporation made and entered into July 21, 1891, between E. T. Williams, S. A. Williams, M. Hocker, H. G. Duke, Jerry Williams, C. M. Williams, Annie E. Williams, R. M. Williams, W. H. Williams, J. S. Williams, K. V. Williams, J. W. Cooper, Frank Cooper, Edward Barrass and T. J. Smith, all of Ohio county, Kentucky, witnesseth: That the above named parties whose names are signed hereto, do hereby associate themselves together for the transaction of the business hereinafter expressed and for the purpose of becoming incorporated under the laws of Kentucky, (Chapter 56, Gen. Statutes.)

¶ 2. The above named parties, together with their associates, successors and assigns, hereby become corporate by the name and style of "Williams Coal Company," and by that name to have perpetual succession, to be capable of contracting and being contracted with, to have and to enjoy all the rights, privileges and powers granted to similar companies under the laws aforesaid, and all the rights, privileges and powers that can be granted under said laws, and by the name aforesaid, may sue and be sued, and may purchase and hold, sell and convey, rent, lease and sublease any land, or real estate, coal field or coal privileges or the timber from any land or do any other thing not inconsistent with the laws aforesaid.

¶ 3. The business of said Company shall be the mining, shipping and selling of coal, and they may buy or rent or build any machinery or railroad track in order to get coal to some existing railroad and may buy, rent or erect any buildings necessary to carry on said business, and to rent or lease same to its employees, or others when not so occupied, and to purchase, build or rent any storehouse on or near lands or coal fields worked by them, and to buy and sell dry goods, groceries and supplies or may lease ont to others any storehouse owned by them.

¶ 4. The capital stock of the Company shall be fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) but may be increased to one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) by a vote of two-thirds of the stock. The said additional fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) to be paid at the call of the Directors if they shall see fit to so increase it, or they may increase said capital stock in any amount not to exceed the total authorized capital stock, ($100,000). And all of said stock shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars ($100) each. But the said Company may be organized and commence business upon a subscription of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) in stock paid up, and after thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) has been taken and paid, then the subscription books shall be closed and not opened again for further subscriptions except by order of stockholders holding a majority of the stock.

¶ 5. The officers of said Company shall consist of a President, Board of Directors, Secretary and Treasurer who shall be elected by the stockholders holding a majority of the stock on the first Monday in April of each year which shall be the time of their annual meeting. They shall each hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and enter upon their several duties. The President shall conduct the business of the Company and shall have control thereof, subject, however, to the control of the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors shall have power to fill all vacancies occurring in their own body or in any other of the offices of the Company, but the President may be turned out and another one elected at any time when a majority of the stockholders holding a majority of the stock shall vote so to do and so elect another President, and shall assemble themselves together for the purpose at the office or other building of the Company or at any other place where they may be called to meet by order of the Board of Directors. The President and six other stockholders of the Company shall constitute the Board of Directors to be elected as hereinbefore specified, and all elections held by this Company, stock may be voted by written proxy and no one shall be eligible to any office who does not at the time of his election own at least one share of paid up stock. None of the offices shall be incompatible except President and Secretary and President and Treasurer.

¶ 6. The stock of the Company shall be deemed personal property and may be transferred on the books of the Company and the company shall have a lien on the stock for any indebtedness due from any stockholder and the same shall not be sold or transferred until said indebtedness is paid. The Company shall also have the refusal of all stock offered for sale and shall not be transferred at the same price and shall have the option of buying same at the same price.

¶ 7. The private property of the stockholders, or members of the Company, and the property of any other corporation holding stock in this Company shall be exempted from liability for the debts of this Company.

¶ 8. The Company may borrow from time to time any money necessary to carry on their business or to purchase any property necessary to the prosecution of their business, and to execute the note or notes of the Company or execute any mortgage on any of the property of the Company to secure the same or indemnify any indorser for the Company. All notes shall be signed by the President and countersigned by the Secretary or Treasurer, and no note or mortgage shall be executed but shall not be ordered by a majority of the Directors. The President shall be authorized to call a meeting of the Directors at any time by written notice. The indebtedness of the Company shall at no time exceed two-thirds of the paid up stock of the Company.

¶ 9. In all suits against the Company service of process shall be upon the President of the Company, and the principal place of business of said Company shall be on the lands of said Company in Ohio county, Kentucky.

¶ 10. The Directors may make bylaws and prescribe such rules and regulations deemed expedient for the management and control of the Company's business, and shall enact such rules for the government of the other officers of this Company as are not inconsistent with anything herein and they are especially authorized, directed and empowered to employ and appoint such agents prescribing for them such duties and conferring such powers, as may be necessary for the carrying on and prosecution of the Company's business; this includes the appointment of Superintendent, Storekeeper and such other managing agents as are usual in the prosecution of the mining business. They may alter or amend or repeal all or any of said by-laws, rules, &c., at pleasure and shall appoint their own times of meeting and provide rules to govern their body which may be changed at will.

¶ 11. The said corporation shall commence as soon as these articles are recorded and shall continued from the date until dissolved by a vote of two-thirds of the paid up stock.

¶ 12. The stockholders shall meet immediately after the recording of these articles and shall proceed to elect the officers herein specified to-wit: the President, Board of Directors, Secretary and Treasurer, in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for their regular annual election, and they shall hold office and serve until the first regular annual election and until their successors are qualified and enter upon the discharge of their particular duties.
